

and never had an opportunity of visiting those countries, in which folly and luxury have almost reached their zenith, in the mode of land conveyance; and where, by a marvellous interchange of occupation, the master drives his own servant. I am told that in London it is all the rage for Noblemen—so mis-called—to dash thro' Bond-street, "four in hand," mounted on their own boxes, having knocked out a front tooth or so, the better to imitate the "trick" and air of coachmen. It is painful to reflect that the servant is too often better qualified to grace the inside of the coach than his master. I have read that in ancient Rome, I believe on the Saturnalia—one day in the year—the master served his servants, at his own table. This was literally turning the tables—but I think, in those times they would hardly have imagined—altho' they might be disposed to imagine any thing barbarous of the descendants of the Germans—that their patricians would have carried their pride and state to a coach-box.

But this has nothing to do with the buggee. My object is to beg of you to give some description of this hitherto non-descript, for the benefit of those who have not been gratified with a view of it: or else request that it may be driven into the different streets, that we may gratify a curiosity proverbial in our sex. Wonderful stories have been told of the effect of this exotic upon the nerves of some old ladies and young children, and it is even said that the police have interfered in one instance, to restrain its impetuosity; it is sincerely hoped that it will not be the cause of serious calamity or affliction. For my part I say let it come, I feel no fear of it, I will meet and endeavor to disarm it of its terrors like him of old.

"Be thou a spirit of health, or goblin damn'd. Bring with thee news from heaven or blasts from hell. Be thy intents wicked or charitable, Thou com'st in such a questionable shape, That I will speak to thee."

I will only add Mr. Printer, that if we go on in groups, in pursuit of some objects, not altogether so commendable, as purchasing "cracked crockery" for instance, there are some follies which the other sex—the "lords of the creation"—chase, with as much eagerness and as little reason. If you remind the gentleman of the "Buggee" of this fact, he may perhaps turn his shaft upon some of the "shallow conceits" of his own sex.

Gazette.

PORTLAND, TUESDAY, JULY 2, 1822.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.

This anniversary will be celebrated in Portland, in a manner more rational than on many former occasions, when scenes of excess, tumult and riot closed the festive joys of many under the name of patriotism.

We learn that the several religious societies in town have united in making arrangements for devotional exercises—and that divine service will be performed at the Episcopal church, after which an appropriate discourse will be delivered by Rev. Mr. Ten Broeck. Exercises to commence at 9 A. M.

We learn too, that the Governor and Council will provide a collation at the State-house, at which the municipal authority of the town and others are invited.—The procession will be formed after the collation, and under the escort of Capt. HENLEY's Light Infantry company, by appointment of the Selectmen, proceed from the State-house to the Rev. Dr. Nichol's Meeting-house, where an Oration will be delivered, by NATHAN CUMMINGS, Esq. in behalf of the town.

Federal salutes will be fired by the Portland Artillery Company, from the Hill, and by the United States soldiers, at Fort Preble, at noon.

Orators in other towns in Maine.

North-Yarmouth—CHARLES CLEVELAND, Esq.
Freeport—JOSIAH MITCHELL, Esq.
Brunswick—ROBERT P. DUNLAP, Esq.
Lisbon—LEVI STOWELL, Esq.

On Thursday last arrived at this port the Ship Liverpool 36 days from Liverpool. Capt. McLellan, to whom we have been indebted on former occasions, has again politely favored us with Liverpool Papers to 21st ult.

The Boston Evening Gazette, notices the receipt of a Liverpool Paper of 22d May.

SPAIN.

We have dates from Gibraltar to 18th May. There were some instances of commotions in Spain but not of a very serious character.

ENGLAND.

The distress of the Irish almost exclusively occupied the public attention. A prompt and noble generosity has afforded very great relief; and probably our next advices will inform us that it is effectual.

The West India and Colonial Trade bills are progressing.

RUSSIA, TURKEY, GREECE.

Our advices relative to these nations, are still of an indefinite character. The intelligence is vague and contradictory, as opposing interests, and different policy dictates.

We cannot place any reliance upon the intelligence gathered from the Foreign Journals in relation to these nations; but our opinion is, as it has always been, inclined to the side of War between Russia and Turkey. We have no further news from Persia.

INSTALLATION.

On Monday, 24th ult. being the Anniversary Festival of the birth-day of St. John, the R. W. Grand Lodge assembled in North Yarmouth, and having been formally notified, proceeded to consecrate and dedicate Casco Lodge, in due and ancient form, and to install the officers who had been elected and appointed. The ceremonies on the occasion were conducted with great decorum and solemnity. A very rich and pertinent discourse was delivered by Bro. Stephen

Chapin, with which we hope the reader will hereafter be favored.—The following officers were installed:
R. W. GEORGE FIERCE, Master.
W. JOHN W. MELLE, S. W.
JAMES C. HILL, J. W.
SAMUEL GILMAN, Secretary.
NATHAN OAKS, Treasurer.
NATHANIEL TRUE, S. D.
ROBERT E. CORLISS, J. D.
AMOS STORER, S. S.
JAMES FIELD, Jr. J. S.
JOHN WORTHLEY, Tyler.

After the services, the procession, consisting of nearly two hundred masons, proceeded from the Meeting-house to an elegant Booth, erected for the occasion, where they partook of a sumptuous dinner, provided by Capt. S. S. Jenks. After the cloth was removed, several excellent and appropriate toasts were drank. The company separated at an early hour, and the day passed away in the most perfect harmony, friendship and hilarity.

The Newburyport Herald says it does not perceive that any thing more can be desired to vindicate the character of Mr. Jefferson from the mistaken charge of defrauding the public Treasury. He now, (says the Herald,) "distinctly denies, what he certainly did not before, that he ever received money for the bill, and shows, by reference to his original entry of the transaction at the time, that so far from charging cash, he only charged a bill on Willinks and Van Staphorst. The Federal Republican, however, still persists in its accusations of the ex-president, and declares that they will be fully established by the Native of Virginia. It now behoves this writer, therefore, either to acknowledge himself mistaken in this matter, or else to redeem the pledge, which he has given, to prove that Mr. Jefferson actually received cash for this bill in Cowes. If he should appear both unable to prove his charge, and unwilling to acknowledge his error, he will certainly give ample cause for suspecting the purity and integrity of his motives, as well as the accuracy of his information."

Mr. Jefferson, in his second letter in reply to "A Native of Virginia," on the subject of the Bill of Exchange, says—"The Bill was never sold or negotiated anywhere; it was not drawn to raise money in the market; I sold it to nobody, received no money on it, but enclosed it to Grand & Co. for some purpose of account."

It is satisfactory to know, that Mr. Torres, Charge des Affaires for the Republic of Colombia, has been officially recognised as such, by the President. He is represented to be a man of worth and talents, and this recognition should be followed by reciprocating the appointment.

William Shaller, Esq. Consul at Algiers, sailed from New-York on Sunday last, for Gibraltar and Malta.

Commerce with France.—Although the Washington papers are silent on this subject, we have information which justifies us in stating with confidence, that a Commercial Treaty between the United States and France has been signed by Mr. Adams and M. De Neuville.

The members of the "Theological Society of Bowdoin College," Brunswick, having lately received valuable presents of books from several individuals, take this method publicly to express to them their warmest thanks. Such munificence will be long remembered. To specify the names of individuals would be incompatible with the necessary brevity of this article. It is deemed sufficient to say that a record of beneficence will be carefully preserved, testifying a grateful remembrance of all those who contributed to the wants of the Society, manifesting more particularly by this regulation, that, while they are anxious to preserve a recollection of wealthy benefactors, they are not unmindful of those who have given even a single book.

DIED.

In this town, Mr. Joshua Pitman, aged 65—Mr. Leonard Griffin, aged about 23—the wife of Mr. John Mahan, aged about 30.

In Gorham, Mr. Thomas Harding, eldest son of Daniel Harding, Esq. Mr. Gregg, whose death was announced in the last weeks paper, was the second son of the Rev. Wm. Gregg of Cape Elizabeth. It is seldom we have cause for deeper regret for the decease of a young man, for there are few in the flower of youth, whose morals were purer, whose worth was greater, or who from all appearances, could be have acted his part on the grand theatre of the world, did fairer to become a blessing to his friends and a useful and respectable member of society.

Under the fostering care of kind and affectionate parents, he had received every assistance in their power for the purpose of qualifying him for future usefulness; and his literary acquirements were such as did honor to his industry, and fully repaid his parents for their indulgence and kind assistance.

Possessing a mild and amiable disposition, an affability of manner, and a heart alive to every tender feeling, he was well calculated to gain the esteem and confidence of those who knew him.

"He had in every feeling heart, a friend." Nature had endowed him with very respectable talents, and from his eager desire for intellectual improvements, considerable was to be expected from his literary acquirements.

Mr. G. was prosecuting the study of medicine, in which he made rapid progress, until sickness prevented his farther pursuit, and his great industry and unremitting attention to study would soon have qualified him for the important and responsible duties of a physician, and rendered him an honor and an ornament to the profession. We have spoken of Mr. G.'s correctness of morals; guided by the religious counsels of affectionate and pious parents, he had avoided the destructive rock of dissipation on which so many at his age split.

Mr. G. loved his friends and was equally beloved by them, and the affectionate endearments and kind interchange of friendship which existed between them, was a source of happiness which he enjoyed in a superior degree.

It is no uncommon thing for a young man who is just entering on the stage of active life, to anticipate a thousand pleasures and delightful scenes of uninterrupted happiness. In the flower of youth when the gay visions of hope excite the imagination and create objects apparently worth the most earnest pursuit, when the ardor of the passions is unkindled, and urges forward to some valuable acquirements or high attainments, death is an unwelcome guest. But Mr. G. was not without reflection—he had a sound discriminating mind and thought of things justly. He never gave loose to visionary transports of the imagination, but confined his desires to things attainable. He witnessed the approach of the king of terrors, and prepared himself, no doubt, for his awful summons. Through a long and painful confinement which he bore with all the calmness and composure that could be expected, his strength was exhausted, and he looked on the feeble chords which attached him to life, with apparent resignation and submission. When the summons of death was announced, although more sudden than was expected, he expressed a remarkable fortitude and composure and observed to his friends without the least apparent alarm that he was going. We are not in possession of any information respecting the conversation of Mr. G. during the latter part of his confinement, which no doubt would be interesting to the public, but have made this very imperfect sketch as a tribute of respect to a very worthy and excellent young man. Happy, apparently, would it have been for the distressed relatives of Mr. G. could they have longer enjoyed the happiness of his friendship and society, and especially, could he have been spared to soothe and comfort his parents, who were rendered dear to him by every kind of solicitude and every anxious care during their declining years. But the ways of heaven, though to us, sometimes, dark and mysterious, must be right. The numerous concourse of people which paid the last tribute of respect to his remains, by following them to their last repository, was an honorable proof of their high respect and kind regard which was felt for him while living.

JAPAN BLACKING,

IMPROVED.

THIS BLACKING is put up in small glass bottles, with a sponge attached to the cork, which when applied to the leather, produces an elegant gloss without brushing, which will last for several days.
Ladies will find it very convenient for dressing their moccasins, as it will not rub off, and shines equal to new leather. This preparation is used on chaise tops, harnesses, and all kinds of military equipage that is made of leather. One bottle, if used according to the directions, will last a gentleman one year, and for a lady's use two years.
It is nine years since the venders introduced this Blacking to the public, the sales of which at the present amount to 15,000 bottles a year, which will undoubtedly satisfy the purchasers of its utility, especially as its circulation has been limited when compared with the extent of the United States.
Read the directions for using so as to have it perfect, for much is depending on the proper management of the Blacking. Each bottle will be signed by the venders in writing.
Sold by S. JOHNSON, PURINGTON & HALL, CALVIN DANA, FREEMAN & WEEKS, in Portland.
Prepared wholesale and retail, by O. & A. CROSBY, Drug gists, Cambridge, N. Y.
Portland, July 2. e.o.p.d.m.

To the Hon. Jeremiah Bailey, Esq. Judge of Probate within and for the County of Lincoln.
